

You are invited to attend the 10th annual Clayton Utz International Arbitration lecture supported by the University of Sydney to be given by Essam Al Tamimi. It will be held in the Ceremonial Court of the Federal Court in Sydney on Tuesday, 8 November 2011.

This year the lecture will be streamed online for our international community as well, presented by video link at Federal Courts in Melbourne, Brisbane and Perth.

Islamic Influences on International Arbitration
Presented by Essam Al Tamimi

Renowned international arbitrator Essam Al Tamimi will focus on:

- Is there scope for Sharia in international arbitration?
- To what extent is Sharia applicable to international arbitration, either directly or through modern laws?
- Can Sharia be considered as equivalent to the equitable law and the general rules of law and justice that are often applied by arbitrators in international arbitration?

Participation will enable you to collect one CLE point.
