The inauguration of a new United States President has far reaching global effects – none more so than the election of President Trump, which has been accompanied by Republican majorities in the US House of Representatives and Senate, and the immediate ability to appoint a new Justice to the US Supreme Court.

In conjunction with the New York State Bar Association's Australian Chapter, the NSW Bar Association is hosting a special panel presentation and Q&A session to examine what the Trump administration might mean for international law and Australia in the next four years and beyond.

Professor Simon Jackman is CEO of the US Studies Centre and Professor Vivienne Bath is the Professor of Chinese & International Business Law, both at the University of Sydney.

Dr Christopher Ward SC is President of the Australian Branch of the International Law Association, and Tim Castle is Deputy Chair of the LCA's International Law Section and NYSBA Australian Chapter Co-Chair, both practising at 6 St James Hall Chambers.

REGISTRATION BY MEMBERS OF THE NSW BAR ASSOCIATION IS NOT REQUIRED
